

MAYNARD HOLBROOK JACKSON HIGH SCHOOL AND
MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR MIDDLE SCHOOL
INCLUSION (SPECIAL NEEDS) POLICY

Maynard Holbrook Jackson High School and Martin Luther King, Jr Middle School accept as proper that the IB should be accessible to all students. Inclusion is not only based solely on differentiation, but also addresses barriers to learning by creating optimal learning environments. These environments celebrate and embrace diversity of all learners by adherence to the following:

- using technology that is accessible to all learners;
- developing collaborative learning activities that include initiatives with shared goals and involve all members of the school community;
- promoting Approaches to Learning that develop affective and metacognitive skills;
- encourage students to view learning as something that they do for themselves in a proactive way, and
- creating accessible assessments in terms of design, content and medium, and teach to variability, which includes differentiation and Universal Design for Learning (UDL)-a framework for curriculum development that provides all students with equal opportunities to learn (Pletser & Parasuram, 2016).

Articulation of Practices

According to the 2016/2017 Student Handbook, a guide of policies, laws and regulations that explains the rights and responsibilities for students, Atlanta Public Schools adhere to the Child Find Policy. The Child Find Policy identifies, locates, and evaluates children and youth, birth to age 21, who are suspected of, or have a disability or developmental delay, in order to provide free and appropriate Special Education services. Child Find at APS offers comprehensive special education services to eligible students ages three through 21 years of age. Parents of students, who suspect their child may have a disability, should contact the teacher, principal or the SST/RTI Specialist. All referrals are considered confidential, and services are provided at no cost. The parent, legal guardian, or surrogate parent retains the right to refuse services and are provided other procedural safeguards under federal and state law.

Public school services include screening in areas of suspected disabilities, such as vision, hearing, autism, motor skills, speech, language, and general development. Evaluations in the schools are provided several areas of suspected disabilities, including learning disabilities, speech and language development, orthopedic impairments, vision or hearing problems, intellectual disabilities, emotional behavior disorders, autism spectrum disorders, health impairments, traumatic brain injuries, and significant developmental delay (pp. 25-26).

The Department of Special Education is required to provide a free, appropriate public education to eligible children in cooperation with parents and other agencies under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act. Each eligible student must have an Individualized Education Program (IEP), which is developed by a team composed of teachers and other qualified school personnel, parents or guardians and the student, when appropriate. The IEP is revised when necessary and reviewed at least annually (APS website).
